A register full of ideas that never reach "Implemented" has an evaluation bottleneck; one full of "Implemented" that never reaches "Verified" is not measuring its results. A register full of ideas that never reach "Implemented" has an evaluation bottleneck; one full of "Implemented" that never reaches "Verified" is not measuring its results.

The green segment is measured; the amber segment is estimates from ideas not yet verified (rejected ideas are excluded). Do not read a bar's full length as a total — the two segments are not the same kind of number and must not be added. Notes

Sample register — replace every entry with your own before relying on it or circulating it.

This register keeps claimed and verified savings strictly separate: the two totals are never added together, and payback is calculated from verified figures only. A claimed saving is an estimate made before or during implementation; treat it as a hope, not a result, until it has been measured. The tool cannot tell whether a verification was done well — a verified figure is only as sound as the measurement behind it.
